Man hit by two trains in apparent suicide try

By Steve Marschke

A Sacramento man survived two train impacts after apparently trying to to commit suicide near 3rd and 4th streets in West Sacramento.

According to Lt. Ron Moore of the West Sacramento Police Department, the 25-year old man placed his head on the track in front of a westbound Amtrak train at about 6 p.m. Friday. The engineer saw the man, but couldn't stop.

"He hit his head and it sort of bounced or something," said Moore. The man then got up and ran to nearby tracks where a cargo train was moving eastbound, and apparently tried to throw himself under the train's wheels.

But he "bounced off" the second train with relatively minor injuries.

"They sewed him up and checked him out psychologically and released him today," Moore said Tuesday.

Two local juveniles arrested in attack on Sacramento boy

Two juvenile males have been arrested after a shooting at Evergreen Circle injured a 17-year old Sacramento boy Saturday at about 2 a.m.

The victim, along with a juvenile male friend and female friend, had driven to the neighborhood to pick up a second girl who lives on Evergreen.

"While in their car, they got into an argument with some people hanging around the area," said Officer Tom Bowler of the West Sacramento Police Department. "Two people produced guns and shot the victim inside the vehicle. (The victim) was hit in the back. They drove themselves to Kaiser Hospital in Sacramento."

The wounded boy was treated at Kaiser, and hospital officials notified West Sacramento police of the gunshot incident.

The two suspects are boys age 15 and 17.

"We arrested one of the suspects yesterday," Bowler said Tuesday. "We found the other today."

The suspects names are being withheld due to their age.

While looking for the second suspect, Bowler said, the police encountered a man who attempted to "hinder" their investigation. The man was found to be in possession of "crack" cocaine, and was himself arrested.

Agustina Rubalcava with tools of her trade

By Cristina Barraza Rubalcava
River City High School Journalism Class

Agustina Rubalcava wakes every school day at 6:30 a.m. She leaves for work at 7:20. She arrives at the corner of Cummings Way and Elder just in time to cross the first of many children safely into their school. She works at Elkhorn Village Elementary in Broderick. She is my mom, the crossing guard.

Sure, in theory, what a crossing guard does may seem like easy work. Secure the children across the street, make a bit of chit-chat, and insure that teachers, parents and kids understand and follow the rules. Agustina explains to the parents the need to show the children how to follow the rules that may save their lives.

What most people don't know is that Agustina is very dedicated to her work. She works every day, rain or shine, sick or not, no exceptions. During her seven years of employment at Elkhorn Village, Agustina has missed under five days! She doesn't work full time, but works only during the hours the children arrive at and leave from school.

What others don't also realize is that Agustina is laying her life on the line for the safety of the children. Every time she steps out in front of a line of cars anxiously awaiting her go-ahead sign, she takes the chance that a car might not stop.

"As long as I do my job well and the kids are safe, I can sleep at night," says Elkhorn Village's crossing guard, my mother, Agustina Rubalcava.

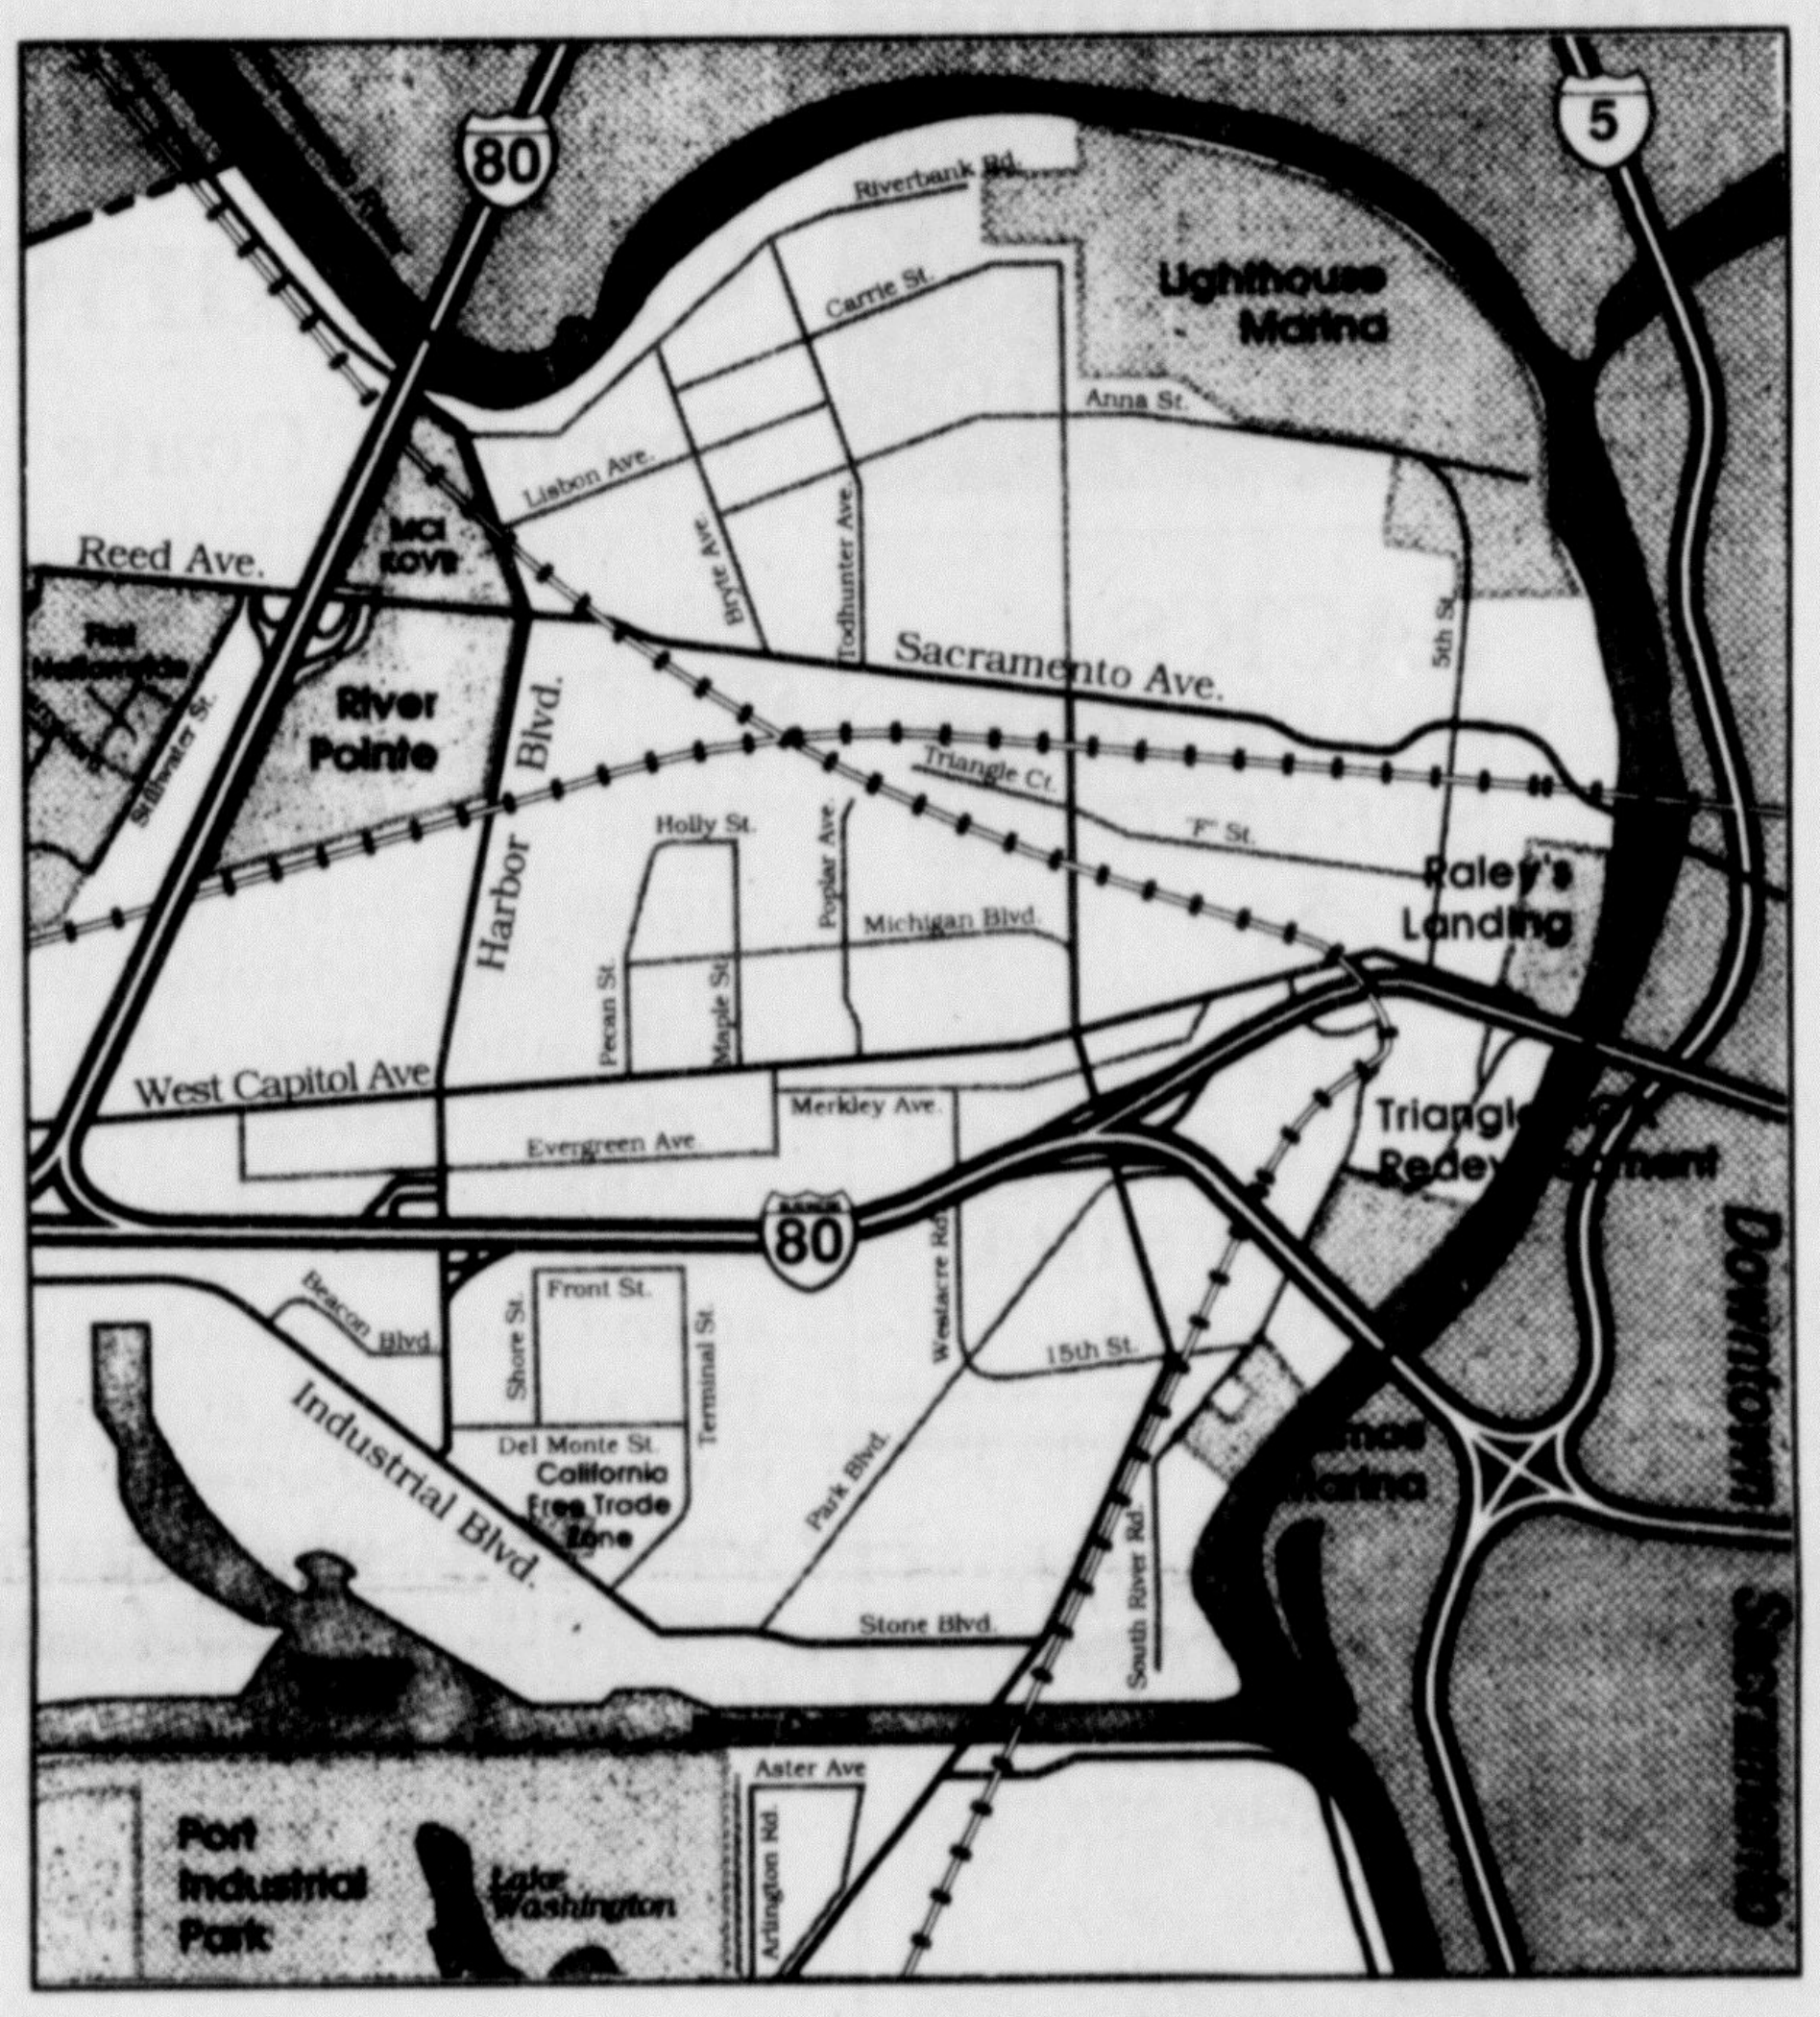
Marina deadline may be dropped

By David Weller

The developer of the Lighthouse Marina, Riverbend Development, is asking the city to remove the deadline for building a marina on the Sacramento River from its development agreement with the city. The issue will come before the planning commission in a public hearing on Thursday, Feb. 16.

If the city does not impose a new deadline, the developer may be relieved of its legal obligation to build the marina, a city official confirmed Tuesday.

"As far as I can tell, there is no longer anything in the agreement requiring the developer to build the marina (after the deadline is removed)" said Senior Planner Terry Roberts.



The northern half of West Sacramento: Lighthouse is at top right.

The deadline for beginning construction has been put off for almost two years because of its link to the city's completion of improvements to Fifth Street.

The agreement originally required construction on the marina to begin by May 1, 1993, but that requirement was contingent upon the city completing its widening of Fifth Street by December of 1992. When the city's work was not completed in 1992, the deadlines were pushed back a year.

Planning to make Fifth Street the primary access to the Lighthouse Marina Development, the city wants to widen it and extend it into the Lighthouse development property before the marina is built.

The city's street widening project suffered several setbacks due to problems gaining right-of-way access, and a lawsuit by Legal Services of Northern California concerning the displacement of residents along Fifth Street, according to Roberts.

Now that the legal impediments have been overcome, the city hopes to have the road construction completed sometime in 1995. According to Roberts, Riverbend Development is asking the city to remove the deadline clause from the agreement because of the continual changes by the city.

The development company did not return calls from the News-Ledger Monday or Tuesday.

Concerns have also been raised about the company's financial ability to build the marina. Once looked to as a high end, "showcase" development for the city, the developer has not sold many parcels, and has had to scale down some of its plans.

The original plan for over 300 boat slips, for example, has been cut to about 200.

Redevelopment Director Val Toppenberg blamed economic conditions in the state on the the failure of the development project to sell homes. "We've seen three and a half years of the worst recession since 1929. A lot of California is seeing problems with the realization of its dreams," he said.

The city has made significant financial commitments to the development. The 1991 agreement with Riverbend Development called for the city to contribute $7 million to infrastructure improvements on the project, which was expected to cost a total of $500 million.

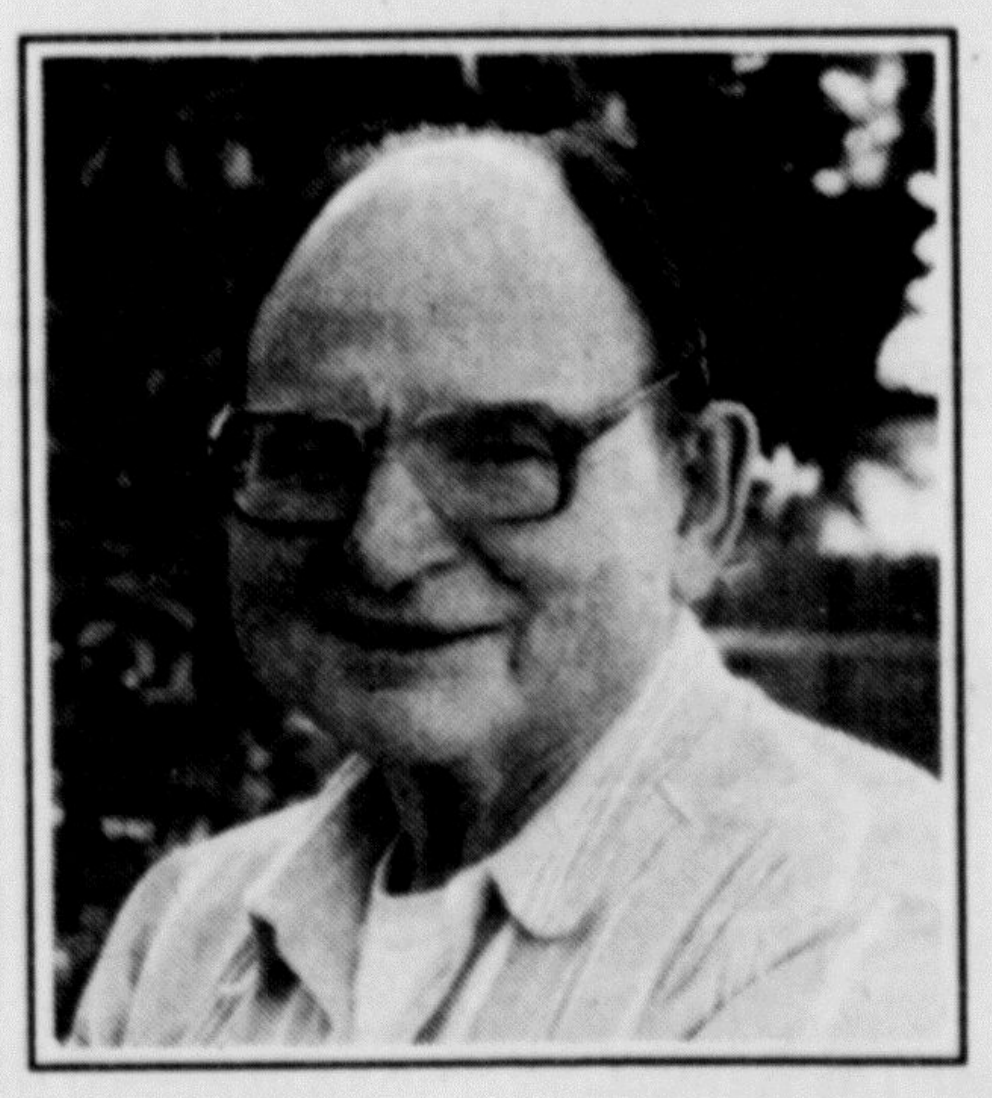
Club alleges its treasurer embezzled $4,000

By Steve Marschke

Police have charged the treasurer of the East Yolo Seniors Club, located on Cummins Way in West Sacramento, with embezzling about $4,000 from the club since 1993.

Eugene Hartman, a resident of the senior center at the same location, was arrested Jan. 31 and booked at Yolo County jail. He was released the next day on his own recognizance.

Hartman said Tuesday he "did not" commit any wrongdoing, and that the issue was a dispute between senior club president Juanita Lopez -- "an ex-girlfriend" -- and himself.



GENE HARTMAN

"I'll be arraigned in March," Hartman said from his apartment Tuesday. "She is accusing me of embezzling from the East Yolo Seniors Club."

Lopez could not be located for comment.

According to police documents, Lopez and the club's vice president, Florence Cameron, told police Hartman did not have the authority to write himself the checks.

Officer Tom Bowler of the West Sacramento Police Department said the checks in question were brought to the club's attention when an accountant examined the books at the end of the year.

Hartman has been featured on several national television newsmagazines. A former Southern California resident, he was at one time convicted of murder in the death of an officemate, John Langlos. The conviction was later overturned.

The man's widow has co-authored a book in which she said she still believes Hartman is guilty.

Hartman maintains his innocence in that case, and said he believes investigators botched much of the evidence. He has told the News-Ledger and other media representatives that he believes Langlos died of natural or accidental causes.

West Sac city council will hold a public hearing, vote again on forcing 'Cheaper' store to wait

The West Sacramento City Council will again visit the "Cheaper" store issue tonight (Feb. 8) at its 7:00 p.m. meeting. The meeting will include a public hearing on whether to allow the discount grocery store to build at its Jefferson Blvd./South Linden Rd. location before a new barge canal bridge is constructed.

By a 3-1 vote, the council has already voted to uphold an appeal of the project's approval, and deny the company the right to immediately construct. Council members Cindy Tuttle, Wes Beers and Greg Potnick voted in the majority, with Roland Hensley opposed and Bill Kristoff abstaining.

City staff was instructed to prepare a formalized set of "findings" for the council's vote tonight.

Chief among the concerns about building the store early are concerns about the traffic it would generate. Proponents say the store would reduce the use of the stressed-out Jefferson Blvd. bridge, and point to a study prepared by a consultant to support their claim.

Opponents, including the Southport Homeowners Association, have maintained that the study is flawed and the store will tend to draw traffic across the barge canal bridge.

The council meets at 2101 Stone Blvd., at the foot of Park Blvd., on the second floor.

Police searching for transient suspect after man is injured during argument at Broderick Boat Ramp

A 37-year old West Sacramento man is "improving" after being stabbed Friday night following an argument at the Broderick Boat Ramp in West Sacramento's northeastern riverfront area. The incident occurred at about 8 p.m., said Officer Tom Bowler of the West Sacramento Police Department.

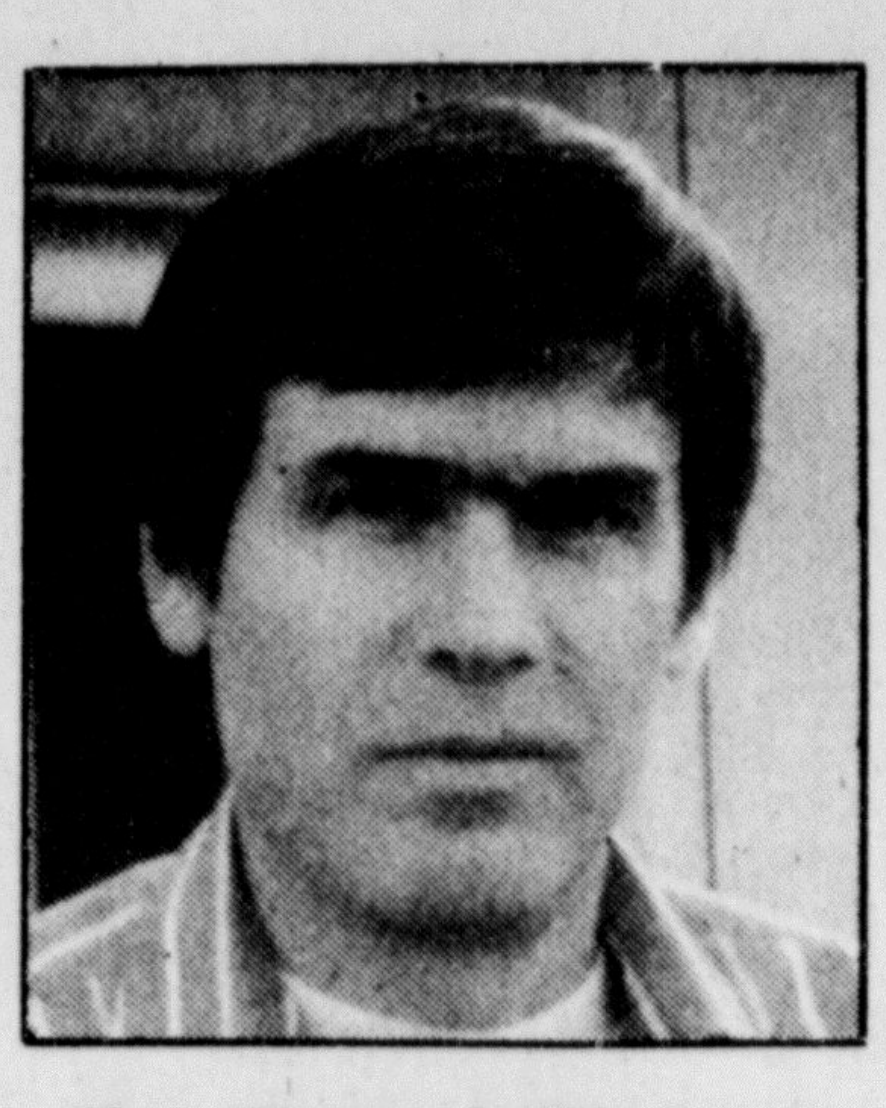
"He got into an argument with another person, a transient," said Bowler. "During the argument, he was stabbed in the face and abdomen. After he was stabbed, he drove from the Broderick Boat Ramp to Safeway (at Jefferson and West Capitol) and that's when police and fire were called."

The victim's name is Albert Boyd Charvat.

Police are looking for the stabbing suspect.

It's only 'mock' trial, but the lessons are very real

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

In the spring of 1971, when I was struggling to get my mind back on my college studies after playing soldier for a year in Vietnam, I came to the youthful conclusion that most of my professors were deliberately conspiring to make my life as miserable as humanly possible. In a somewhat feeble attempt to communicate those feelings to my sadistic statistics teacher (the conspiratorial ringleader), I snuck into his classroom late one afternoon and left the following quote scribbled on his ugly green blackboard: "Given a sufficiently vivid imagination, teachers may even entertain illusions of social usefulness."

At the very same time, a young Clarksburg High School graduate named Bill Mesquita was setting out to become the very best educator he possibly could. As part of that commitment, sixteen years ago he set up what is now River City High School's political science curriculum, and eight years ago, he added even more depth to that program by talking reluctant Sacramento County officials into allowing a Yolo County high school to participate and compete in their annual Law Related Conference and Mock Trial Competition.

Mock Trial makes it possible for two dozen local high schools to prepare a prosecution and a defense based on facts of a criminal case which is then taken to a real courtroom and presided over by actual Superior Court Judges, with students serving as lawyers, witnesses, and jurors.

"Mock Trial is really good for our kids," Mr. Mesquita explained to me just minutes before the exciting competition was to begin last Thursday night at the Sacramento County Courthouse. "It requires them to understand the law, the constitution and the rights of every citizen. It also makes them think on their feet, work as a team and perform with grace under pressure. Maybe best of all, though, is that they don't all have to be straight A students to participate. They just have to be willing to work real hard and think critically."

"So, how's the blood pressure?" I asked him, knowing how hard he and his students have been working for over four months now to prepare for the competition.

"It'll go down in the summer," he assured me with a smile.

"This place is really packed," I said, noticing that the school district was also represented by board members Irene Eklund and Pat Flint, River City Principal Donna White, and teachers Sandra Green and Sandra Larson.

"It's great how this program has grown over the years," said Mr. Mesquita. "Counting all of our jurors and witnesses, we've got over forty kids participating this year. We've even got our own team bus now."

As the youthful lawyers from River City and Rio Linda began to make their opening arguments, I sat back in my chair and went over some quotes I had quickly jotted down out in the hallway earlier in the evening when I asked some of Mr. Mesquita's students what they liked most about Mock Trial.

"I like the way Mr. Mesquita always feeds us really good on Saturday mornings when we practice," said Leslie Lamkin. "And he pays for most of that out of his own pocket, too."

"What else do you guys like about Mr. Mesquita?" I decided to ask them.

"He's always there to catch us when we fall," said Rishi Sharma.

"And he knows what he's talking about," said Marie Vasi. "He doesn't just feed us a lot of worthless BS." Noticing that I was scribbling down her every word, Marie quickly added, "You're not going to put that BS part in your column, are you?"

"No," I lied.

"Good," she said, obviously relieved.

"He recognizes our weaknesses and helps us work them out," interjected Melissa Ferrell.

"And not only does he know what's going on," said Androdi Villalobos, "but he actually knows how to teach it."

When I mentioned to Bill that some of his students thought he was a pretty good teacher, he smiled modestly and said, "Are you kidding--the real teachers in my family are my wife and daughter."

Mock Trial is judged by local professional lawyers who volunteer their time to watch the competition. As I write this, it will be some time before we know how River City did (the two- hour trials between different schools go on for almost a week), but they have a history of finishing in the top ten--once in the top three--and Mr. Mesquita thinks this just might be his best Mock Trial team ever . Yet as I watched Thursday night's trial come to an end, it was obvious to me and all the other parents and spectators that every student who had participated was already a winner. And later that night, as I rehashed the evening's events with my son, Ty, who had been one of River City's lawyers, I thought of how Edgar Friedenberg must have had teachers like Bill Mesquita in mind when he wrote, "What more can we do for others but inspire them."

"You want another example of why Mr. Mesquita is hecka-cool?" asked Ty as he looked over my notes for this column.

"Sure," I said.

"He gave me one of his favorite sports coats to wear tonight because he knows my own dad is too cheap to buy me one!"

NOTE: Other members of this years River City Mock Trial team not mentioned in this column are Rebecca Shubin, Eddie Tacdol, Andrea Smith, Ivana Nikolic, Jason Scrimsher, Sarah Vanderford, Kizzy Wood, Raquel Peralta, Shelly Taunk, Handel Jackman, Maria Martinez, and Geoff Lauter, who contributed countless hours of his free time to be the team's attorney coach.

Different fighting styles mark January competition

From the West Sacramento Karate Club

The School of International Competition Karate, also known as the West Sacramento Karate Club (W.S.K.C.), closes another championship year and kicks off the New Year. A fighting team was assembled to compete in the Annual California/ Nevada Karate and Martial Arts Championship. This tournament was held in California on Saturday, January 21, and was sanctioned by the International Martial Arts Competitors Federation.

This being an "open" karate championship tournament, it drew fighters representing the best and strongest of the martial art styles from California and Nevada. Shotokan, Kenpo Okinawan-Goju-Ryu, Kajukenbo, Isshin-Ryu, Shudokan, Kyokushinkai, Renbukai, and Tang Soo Doo, produced the best fighters for the open tournaments.

The School of International Competition Karate trains their students to compete against the various martial arts styles offered by tougher open tournament competition. The W.S.K.C. team started off with their fighters Nikki Hansen, Sarah Lesly and Scott Walker, jumping out for an early lead by dominating and sweeping their divisions and taking the first set of first place trophies. As the tournament progressed, Rocky Keomek, Joseph Sutton and Carlos Thomas with their performance, kept their school in first place. Dan Butler, John Paul De LaPaz, Vincent Inzunza and Panyna Keomek also secured their divisions, taking trophies and maintaining the W.S.K.C.'s lead. With the powerful closing performances of Ricky Inzunza, Billy Saelee, Morgan Schultz and Wayne Simonsma, the victory was secured.

California had the better showing between the two states and the School of International Competition Karate's Shotokan fighting team (W.S.K.C.),. had the strongest showing of all the schools, dominating the multiple divisions, and was awarded the five-foot grand trophy for their accomplishment.

The W.S.K.C. and instructors would like to give special thanks to Calvin Carter, Marcy & Terry Walker, Inez Inzunza, Marla & Frank Butler for all their assistance and support for the W.S.K.C. team.

News-Ledger Editorial

Lawnmower sightings

Last January had more rainy days than any January in recent history.

But there was a break in the clouds, about a week ago, that was very heartening and very much needed.

When the sun poked through, for a day or so of gorgeous, partially-cloudy sunshine, you could see a little preview of spring. People were out walking. Most of the walkers were walking aimlessly since West Sacramento does not really have any good, old fashioned, pedestrian-oriented development. But let's not dwell on that, or the fact that even in the "progressive" new city plans, walking won't be truly encouraged. Such talk would just take away from the calculated light-hearted tone of this opinion piece. . .)

Some folks, during that brief golden interlude, were playing football in the park, or even out mowing their lawns.

Then the low clouds came back, and blotted out the sun without doing anything really productive, like raising our water tables. For a little while, we had honest-to-goodness tule fog -- that's what we're used to in January. In fact, when the tule fog settles over the Central Valley for weeks or even a month at a time, it has been described from satellite photos as some kind of "great white peanut" hanging over the valley.

It may be only a few hundred feet deep, but from the pancake-flat valley floor, the fog might as well be 10,000 feet thick.

The tule fog is gone for the moment. We're back with merely mediocre weather - - and ready for spring.

Ideas for seniors

The West Sacramento Commission on Aging is again urging all residents to express their opinions about what should be included in the community senior center now being planned.

The new senior center is on the agenda for discussion at the commission meeting to be held February 13 at 10 a.m. at the city council chambers in the Trade Center on Stone Blvd. If it is not possible to come to the meeting for input, suggestions can be made in writing and addressed to the commission c/o Parks and Community Services, 1951 South River Road, West Sacramento, CA, 95691, or persons may call 373-5860 or 372-0409.

Agenda for the meeting in March will include information on serving on the Grand Jury. Watch for location of this meeting and for further information.

Cheaper

West Sacramento Press, please tell me that you weren't there January 18, 1995.

That's when the city council upheld an appeal, denying the early construction of a "Cheaper" store. If you weren't there that would help to explain how you could write such a preposterous and inflammatory headline in your January 25, issue: "Cheaper told to get out of town."

If you were at the council meeting that night, you would know that our city council did not make any such comments.

They extended every opportunity and then several more for the applicant and city staff to make their case and provide evidence to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that traffic and traffic safety would not be adversely affected. The proponents with unprecedented city staff and planning commission help failed to do that.

Never did the city council infer verbally or through actions that "Cheaper" was to get out of town. "Cheaper" will have the opportunity to apply again, when our bridge is built and development can be opened for everyone. Oh, and they were not asked to close their other location!

Jim Cahill on the other hand, after voting on this issue as a planning commissioner, makes a highly unusual appearance at the public hearing before the city council arguing that the decision made earlier to approve the project by the Planning Commission was somehow beyond scrutiny. Then in a front page story with the "Press" he goes even further by chastising the city council for their decision, claiming he is "extremely surprised at the council's decision" and "very interested to see how staff is going to justify the council's decision." The only real question is: will they want to justify the council's decision, and if not, what kind of job will they do?

Jim Cahill continued by taking cheap shots at his neighbors...slinging sewage left and right, effectively stereotyping and labeling Southport residents as divisive, condescending, and in effect bigots.

It's too bad that Jim has been a no show at the homeowners meetings for the past two years. If he had been participating, communicating, and listening to his neighbors, perhaps he would see that we are not the monsters that his mind has conjured up.

I wonder if he realizes that these people that I supposedly despise are my very own family. I wonder if he knew that I was born and raised in Bryte, lived there for 20 years and attended public school there just like everyone else.

I wonder if he realizes that many of our neighbors are also long time residents of that so-called other side. I wonder if he knows that my grandparents all lived there for some 40 years, and that my parents and all their friends still live there?

I wonder if he realizes that my aunts and uncles live there too. I wonder if he realizes that I was not raised with a silver spoon in my mouth, that I spent a number of summers picking tomatoes in the fields.

Too often people pretend to know the thoughts and motives of others without ever taking the time or effort to sit down and talk to them and learn how others see things. For someone who is now president of our Planning Commission to think that he has all the answers and has no need to talk to others in his immediate neighborhood and/or to dismiss their views as meaningless or not politically correct and therefore unacceptable, is truly inexcusable.

The issues were debated, the data was considered, the process was more than fair.

Some feel they won, some feel they lost...learn to live with it and move on.

Community clinic

More and more people without health coverage use emergency rooms for treatment of minor illnesses because they do not have a family doctor. This growing trend is expensive for us all as higher hospital costs and increased insurance premiums result from reliance on emergency rooms for non-emergency services. Far worse, it does not achieve the quality that comes from continuity of care.

The Community Clinic provides a lower cost alternative in our community by treating people with minor illnesses and referring those with more serious problems to the appropriate specialists. We provide continuity of care for those families with few resources.

The clinic's emphasis on prevention and early detection of health care problems also keeps our clients from having to use more expensive forms of medical care, such as costly treatments for late stages of some illnesses. In addition, over 100 area physicians and dentists give their time and expertise in order to serve those in need at the clinic. Furthermore,, almost 50 trained community volunteers also give their time to the clinic in such capacities as translators, lab assistants and patient assistants. This not only contributes to making our clinic care affordable, it also contributes to a high community standard of care in a cost effective manner.

We provide access and quality continuity of care while keeping costs down! But even the excellent, cost-effective medical care provided by the Community Clinic is not free. However, although most of our clients work, their low wages and lack of medical insurance often mean they cannot afford to cover the full costs of care. On the other hand, government grant programs do not provide enough funds for a significant number of our patient visits. It is only through the generous donations of people who support the Community Clinic that we are able to sustain care.

For over 22 years the Community Clinic has provided a unique and crucial service in our area. Tax deductible donations to the clinic go a long way. For instance, a $25 gift will furnish treatment for a sick child, including medications. A $75 gift pays for a newborn physical in the hospital. Please give what you can to keep our local children healthy. Your "gift of health" can be made payable and sent to: The Community Clinic, P.O. Box 276, Davis, CA, 95617. On behalf of those you will help, our deepest thanks for your caring contribution.

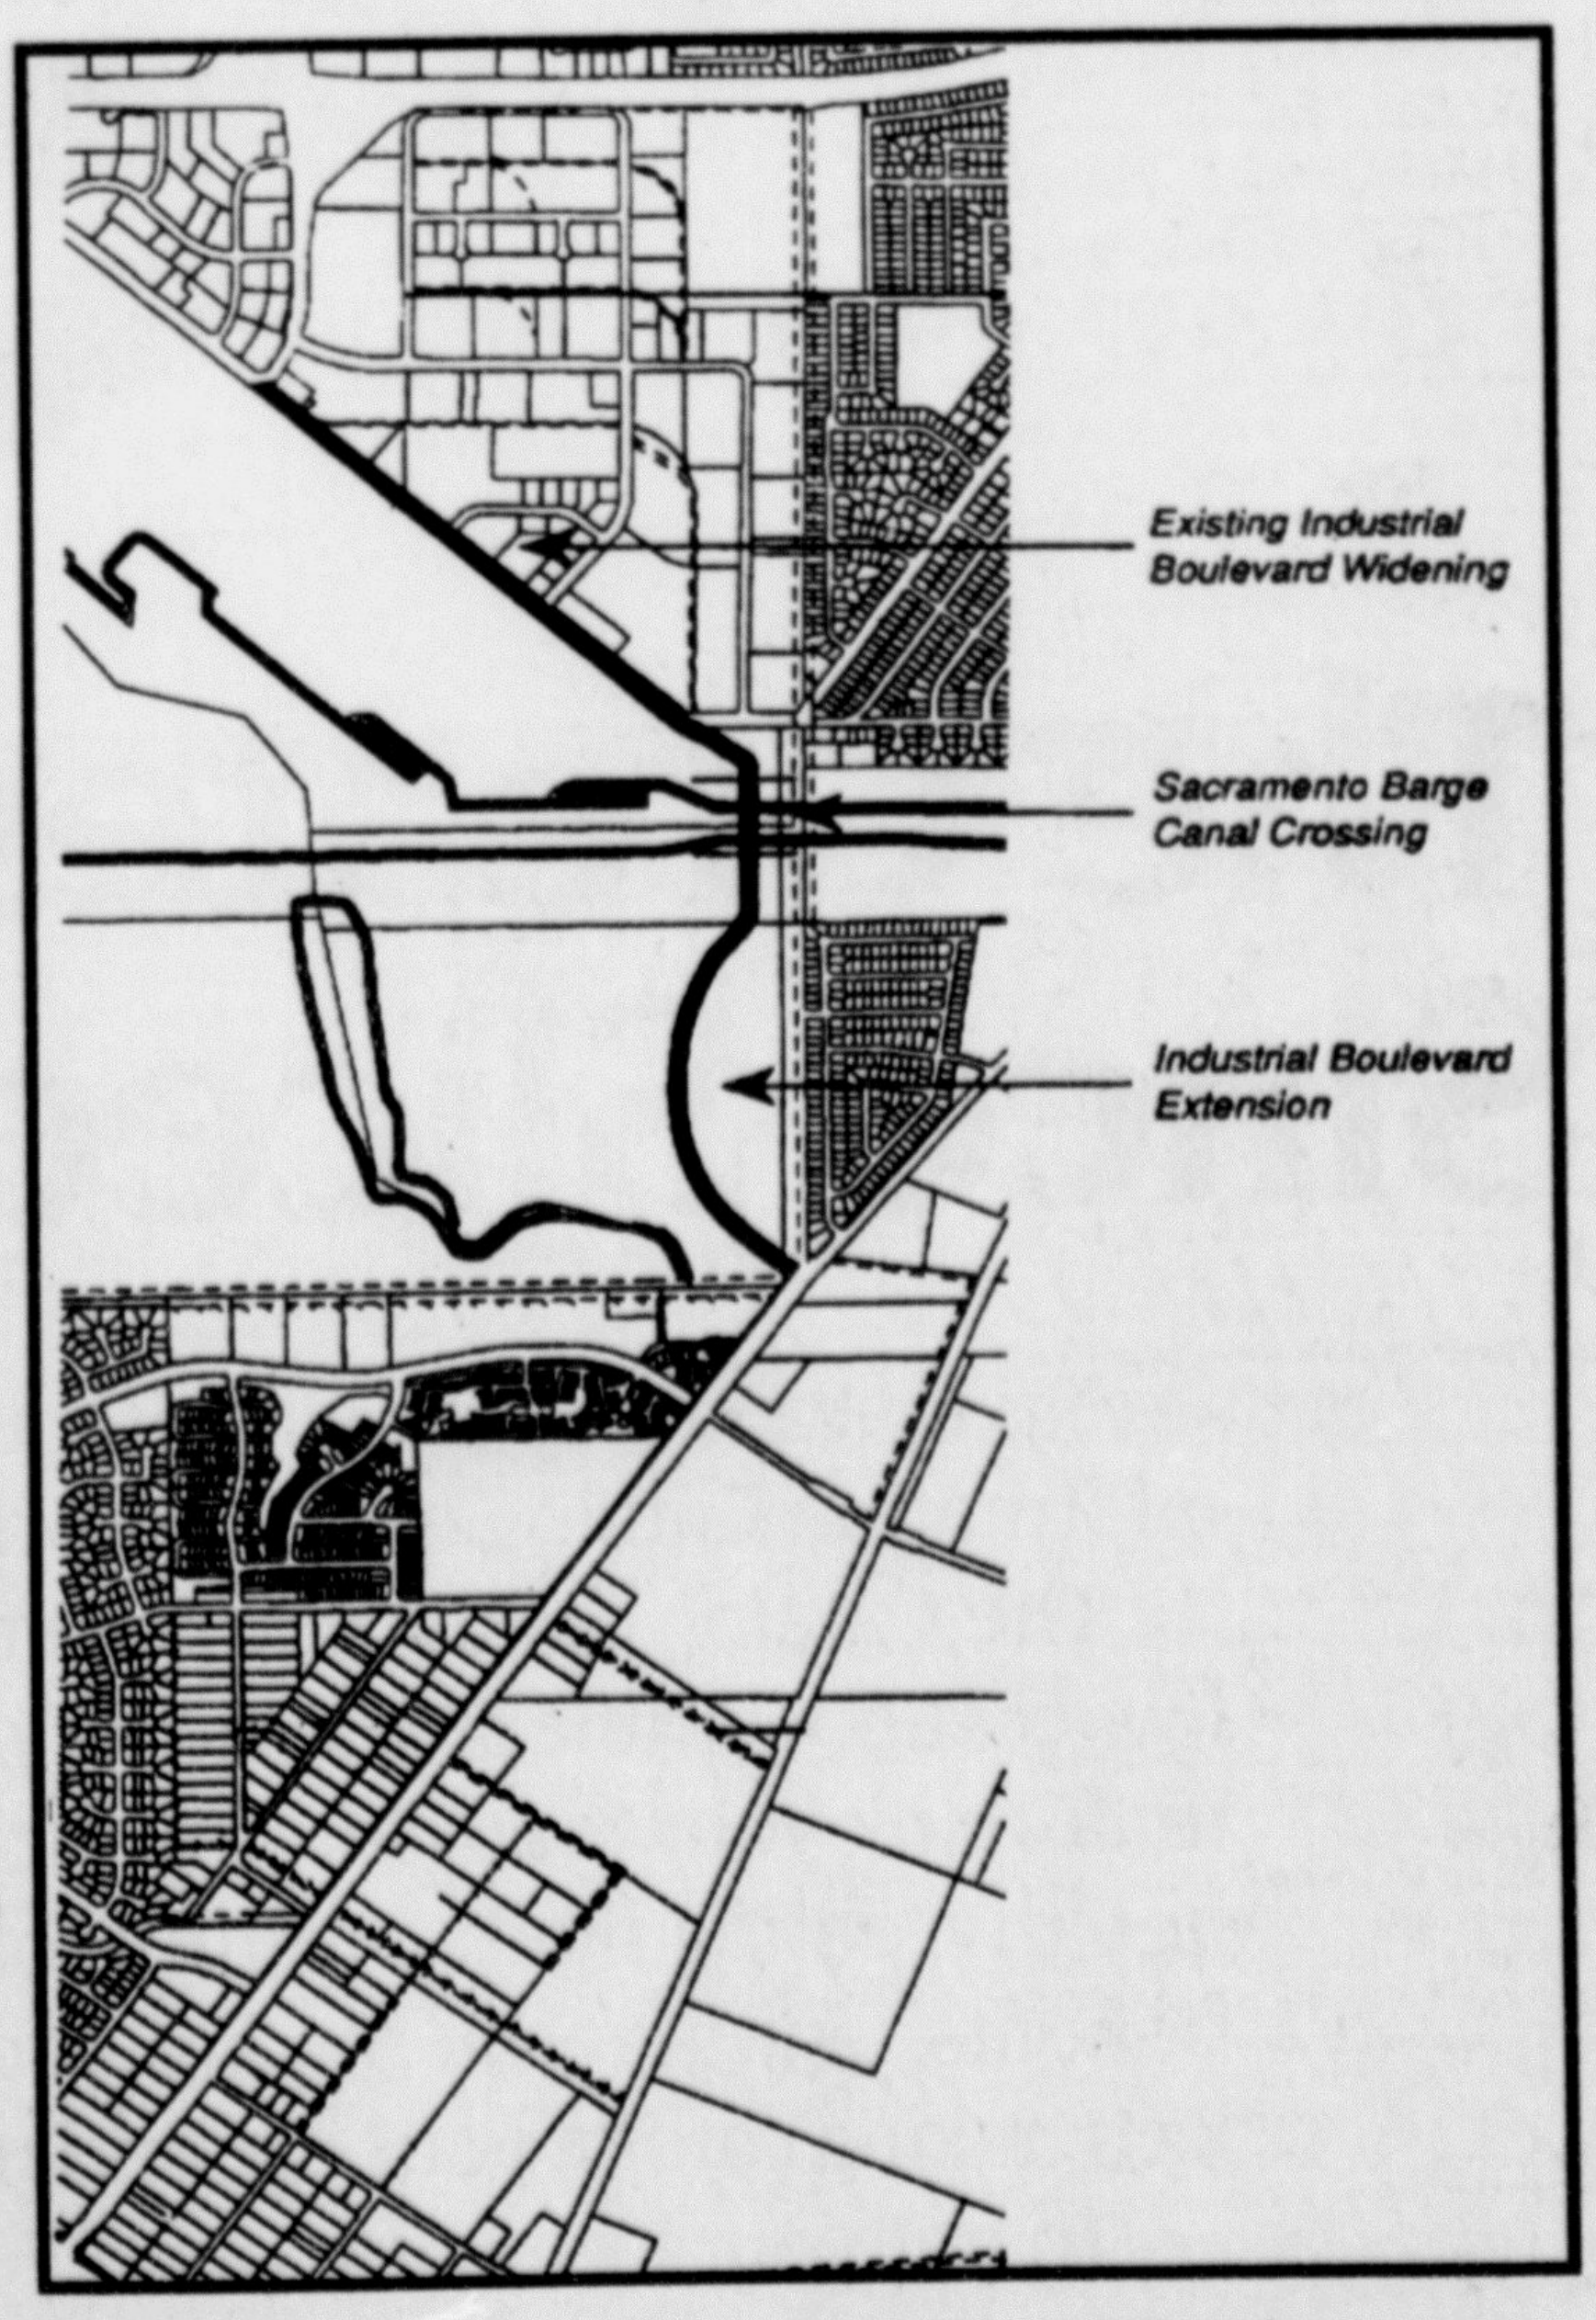
INDUSTRIAL BOULEVARD IMPROVEMENT PROJECT

NOTICE TO ADOPT A MITIGATED NEGATIVE DECLARATION

The West Sacramento City Council will consider adoption of the Mitigated Negative Declaration for the Industrial Blvd. Improvement Project on Wednesday, February 8, 1995 in the City Council chambers located at 2101 Stone Boulevard, West Sacramento, California, at 7:00 p.m., or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard.



Existing Industrial Boulevard Widening
Sacramento Barge Canal Crossing
Industrial Boulevard Extension

The proposed improvement project involves widening and improving Industrial Blvd. between Harbor Blvd. and Stone Blvd., construction of a new bridge over the barge canal (the Palamidessi Bridge), and construction of a new extension of Industrial Blvd. from the new bridge to Jefferson Blvd. (see map inset). The purpose of this roadway improvement project is to accommodate planned development within the City limits.

A draft Mitigated Negative Declaration was prepared in May 1994 for the project by the City of West Sacramento Community Development Department. This Mitigated Negative Declaration was prepared to address the potential environmental impacts of the project, and it concludes that, with the implementation of recommended mitigation measures, there will be no significant adverse impacts on the environment. The Federal Highway Administration has independently determined that there will be no significant environmental impacts from this project.

A public hearing was held on June 9, 1994 to receive public comments on the draft Mitigated Negative Declaration, and the public review period for the document closed on June 13, 1994. All comments from individuals and agencies have been incorporated into the final Mitigated Negative Declaration. This final document will be presented to the City Council for adoption prior to the start of right of way acquisition.

Copies of the Mitigated Negative Declaration are on file in the office of the West Sacramento Community Development Department at 1951 South River Road, West Sacramento, CA 95691. Please contact Mr. Marc Hackbarth of the Engineering Division or Ms. Terry Roberts of the Planning Division at this address, or call (916) 373-5854, if you have any questions or need more information about this project.

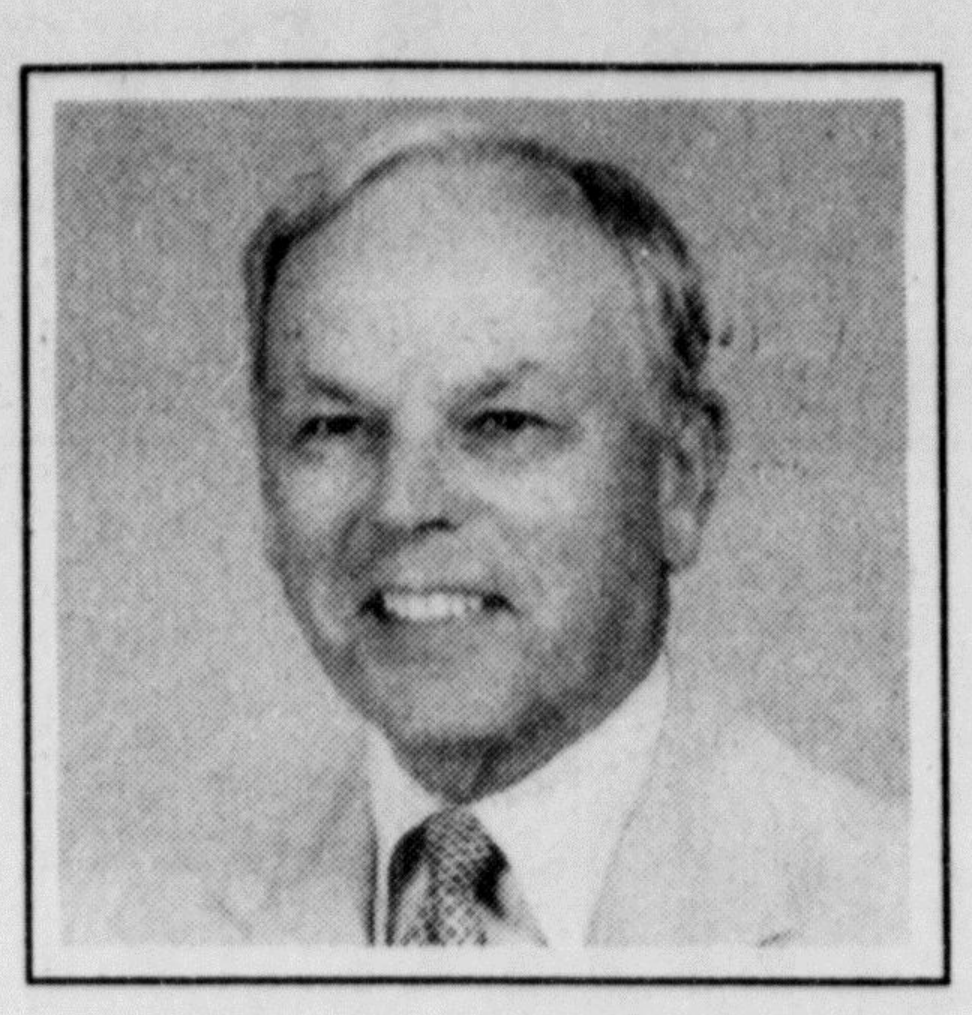
Your taxes: flood damage deduction

Jim Lensch is a tax consultant with H&R Block. His office is located at 6622 Florin Road, Sacramento and the phone number is 394-1264. If readers of this column have any tax questions they wish answered, either in this column or confidentially, please contact the editor or Jim Lensch directly.



Was your property damaged or destroyed by the recent storms and resultant floods? If so, you may be entitled to claim that loss to reduce your taxable income says H&R Block, the nation's largest income tax preparation firm.

Following the damaging storms, President Clinton declared California a major disaster area. Effective January 12, thirty-four California counties were designated as eligible for Federal Disaster Aid. Amador, Placer, Sacramento and Yolo Counties are among the counties specified.

Because these counties are in a federally declared "disaster area," you may deduct your loss on either your 1994 or 1995 federal income tax return. This special tax law enables you to choose which year you file the loss. A taxpayer has until the due date of the return for the year of the loss to make the election. The election to claim the deduction on a prior year's return (1994) becomes irrevocable ninety (90) days after being made. The choice should be based on which year the claim will result in the greater deduction of tax or how quickly the taxpayer needs the tax refund.

Even though it may not be difficult to prove that a natural disaster occurred, you should collect evidence that shows damage to your property. If your return is audited by the IRS, you will need records of the amount of damage, the value of your property before and after the disaster, the cost of repairs to your property (if you use the cost of repairs as a measure of the loss in value of your property), and the cost of your property. A written appraisal of the value of your property after the damage also may prove helpful; it is not, however, absolutely essential.

Your deductible loss is either the cost of your property or its decrease in market value. Your deductible loss is decreased by any insurance reimbursement.

You may receive or have received a grant under the Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act. Grant amounts are not taxable. However, if the grant was made to reimburse you for a specific loss, your deductible loss is reduced by the grant amount. In addition, the deductible loss for your personal-use property (any property not used for business or investment purposes) is also reduced by $100 per casualty, and by 10 percent of your adjusted gross income.

The deduction generally can be claimed only by the person who owns the property that was damaged. You may deduct losses, however, if you lease or rent property and are liable to the owner for the loss amount.

If the deductible part of your unreimbursed losses exceeds your income for the year of filing, you will pay NO income taxes for that year. In certain cases, you can carry all or part of the loss back three years and apply it against your prior years' income until it is used up. Or, you may choose to carry this amount forward as many as 15 years, beginning with your tax return for the first year's "declared" loss.

The most important thing you may do right now is to insure you have the following information before filing your return. Assemble the following information:

1. Nature and date of disaster.
2. Substantiation that your loss was a direct result of the disaster.
3. Documents that show you legally own the property or are legally responsible for damages to the property.
4. Cost or other basis of the property.
5. Amount of any allowable depreciation on the property.
6. Value of the property before and after the disaster.
7. Amount of insurance or other reimbursements.

Substantiation includes:

- Police reports
- Photographs
- Newspaper clippings

A strategy for dealing with addiction

By Eric Reininga
Yolo Unite

Addiction is a complex problem which results from many factors and which affects the addict's whole family. Besides dependence on drugs and/or alcohol, addicts frequently share many common characteristics including a sense of isolation and low self-esteem, poor coping skills, inadequate education and work skills and childhood experiences of substance abuse and family violence.

As a result of these childhood experiences, many adult addicts lack appropriate parenting skills and are bound to perpetuate the cycle of addiction and violence into the next generation. Unfortunately, these families frequently only come to the attention of the system after either child abuse and neglect have taken place, or they have become involved with the criminal justice system.

Historically, substance abuse programs have primarily served adult males only, and frequently have addressed only the physical and behavioral aspects of addiction. As a result, although treatment for addicts is necessary, it often has been ineffective, providing help that is too limited and too late.

During the past few years, however, we in Yolo County have begun to tackle this serious problem in a new way. The new focus is on prevention and early intervention, providing a continuum of treatment and support services to high risk substance abusing families in order to break the cycle of addiction and violence.

To provide these services, the Community Clinic, Yolo County Child Welfare Services and Yolo County Public Health -- Nursing Division, have joined forces to do outreach and early intervention with high risk families before child abuse and neglect take place, and before the cycle of addiction and violence can be passed on to the next generation.

Many of the clients are identified through Child Welfare Services and Public Health. The team also takes referrals from the community, hospitals and clinics, substance abuse treatment programs and other social service providers. The team makes a series of home visits during which it can assess clients' needs and help them access the type and level of support and treatment they require.

The idea is to provide the family with treatment and support services before their member's substance abuse problems become so advanced that they get into trouble with the law and/or endanger the welfare of their children.

Once the family has been assessed and engaged in treatment, they are able to access a wide range of recovery and support services including drug detox, 12-step support groups, parenting education (including hands-on supervised experience with their children), individual and group counseling, family counseling, nutrition and budgeting education. During the final stages of treatment at The Clinic, clients are linked with GAIN and Community Partnership Agency to help them with schooling, work skills development and job placement.

In addition, through the Sister/Friend project, clients are matched with volunteer mentors from the community. This program helps clients replace negative, abusive support systems with healthy alternatives from their community. This is a very important program because many of these families are isolated and lack adequate, positive support systems.

This relationship serves as a bridge back to the community, providing a positive role model and a drug-free support system for a number of years.

It is only through this kind of intervention and community involvement that we can hope to make a difference.

Returns Selected for Examination Don't Suggest Dishonesty

Following are examples of common questions people ask the Internal Revenue Service. They are presented as a public service of this publication and the IRS.

Q. How are returns selected for examination?

A. The Internal Revenue Service accepts most federal tax returns as filed. However, some returns are examined to verify correctness of income, expenses, and credits. Returns are chosen by computerized screening, random sample, or by an income document matching program using information from Forms W-2, "Wage or Tax Statement" or from Forms 1099 for reporting other income. If your return is selected for examination, it does not mean that you made an error or are dishonest.

Q. Where does the examination take place?

A. Some examinations are handled entirely by mail. Others may take place in your home, place of business, an IRS office, or the office of your attorney, accountant or enrolled agent. If the time or place is not convenient for you, the examiner will try to work out something more suitable. But the IRS makes the final determination of when, where, and how the examination will take place.

Q. Can I tape record the examination?

A. You can make an audio recording of the examination interview but you should make a request in writing to the examiner 10 days in advance and bring your own recording equipment. The IRS can also record the examination. If the recording is initiated by IRS, you will be notified 10 days in advance, and you can get a copy of the recording at your expense.

Q. What kind of records do I bring to the interview?

A. When you are notified that your return has been selected, you will be told what records you will need. If you gather your records before the examination, it can be completed with the least effort. The IRS will explain any proposed changes to you or your authorized representative. Most taxpayers agree to the changes proposed by the examiner, and examinations are closed at this level.

Q. What rights do I have if I don't agree to the changes?

A. Because people sometimes disagree on tax matters, the IRS has an appeals system. However, your reasons for the disagreement must come within the scope of the tax laws. You cannot appeal your case based only on moral, religious, political, constitutional or similar grounds. If you don't want to appeal your case within the IRS, you can take your case directly to court.

Rejection of Bids: The right is reserved to reject any and all bids. Any bid not conforming to the intent and purpose of the contract documents may be rejected. The City reserves the right to make all awards in the best interest of the City.

Disqualification of Bidder: If there is a reason to believe that collusion exists among any bidders, none of the bids of the participants in such collusion will be considered and the City may likewise elect to reject all bids received.

Relief of Bidder: Attention is directed to the provisions of Public Contracts Code Section 5101 and following, concerning relief of bidders and in particular to the requirements therein that if the bidder claims a mistake was made in his bid, the bidder shall give the City written notice, within five (5) days after the opening of bids of the alleged mistake, specifying in the notice, in detail, how the mistake occurred.

Wage Rates: Bidders are hereby notified that the California Director of Industrial Relations has determined the general prevailing rate of wages for each craft, classification, or type of worker needed to execute the work.

It shall be mandatory for the Contractor and any subcontractor under him to pay not less than the said specified rates to laborers and workmen employed by them in the execution of the Contract.

Bonds: The successful bidder will be required to furnish a payment bond in an amount equal to one hundred (100) percent of the Contract price, and a faithful performance bond in an amount equal to one hundred (100) percent of the Contract price.

I Street Bridge is still closed

The I St. Bridge was still closed Tuesday after a boat collided with it and caused electrical systems damage.

The collision occurred when the Nam Sang, a classic 73' sailboat with 86' masts, failed to clear the bridge on Saturday. The boat had made the passage previously, but high waters from recent storms have reduced the clearance height recently.

As the masts caught on the bridge, the current pushed the boat over on its sides, and all nine people on board had to be rescued by boat. The boat turned over and sank. Salvage operations are being discussed.

BRIDGE

1. Pass. Let's assume partner has indicated 22 to 24 points, a balanced hand, and high cards in all suits. It could therefore be argued that the combined holding might be 26 or 27 points and you should raise partner to three.

But another factor must also be considered — namely, that partner will have trouble reaching dummy to take any finesses he may need. This lack of communication is likely to prove fatal even if partner has 23 or 24 points. While it is true that 26 points usually produce a good play for game, this is usually not the case when one player holds all, or practically all, of the points.

2. Six notrump. This is strictly a matter of arithmetic. Partner's 22 to 24 points added to your 12 bring your combined total to 34, 35 or 36 points. Only 33 are ordinarily required for a small slam (37 for a grand slam), so you should bid six without further ado.

3. Four hearts. High-card points are not the only criterion in judging the probability of game. You have only three points in high cards here, but the six-card suit is worth about three points more in terms of playing strength. You can probably win five or six tricks with hearts as trump, and your prospects should be appraised with that in mind. Your four heart bid should be treated by partner as a shut-out. If you were interested in slam, or had only five hearts, your proper response would be three hearts.

4. Four notrump. This is not Blackwood; rather, it is a raise in notrump inviting partner to bid a slam. Partner should pass with a minimum and go on with a maximum. Holding 10 points, you have no way of telling whether your combined total comes to 32, 33, or 34 points, so partner is asked to make the final decision.

5. Three diamonds. Your 5-5-2-1 distribution and nine high-card points strongly suggest a slam in one of the minor suits, and your intention is to find out which one partner prefers. To this end, you should follow the usual procedure of naming the higher-ranking of two five-card suits first. If partner rebids three notrump, you bid four clubs next, planning to bid six of whichever suit partner supports.
